

A detailed topographic map of the Périgueux region in France. The map features the Garonne river (Rivière Garonne) flowing through the center, with several tributaries like the Dronne and Vézère. Major towns and villages are labeled, including Périgueux, Fressonnet, la Roche, la Gare, and Châtelus. The map uses contour lines to show elevation, with various peaks and valleys marked. Roads are depicted as black lines, and a prominent red line highlights a specific route or boundary. The terrain is characterized by green hills and valleys, with some areas of higher elevation shown in brown. The map also includes numerous smaller place names and geographical features, providing a comprehensive view of the region's topography and infrastructure.
